

“Commune”

Exhibition runs March 1st – May 20th 2005

Koochooloo Gallery, 282 West Zafar Avenue, Africa Expressway, Tehran, Iran

Commune, a new show featuring new work by Arash Kaynama and Kelly Sant opens this March at the Modern Art Gallery Koochooloo.

Commune is a collection of works expressing the state of and representation of overlapping cultures and the objects found to co-exist between them.

A collection of found, reconsidered and reconstructed communal parts.

Constructed relationships, expressing moments in time: occupancies, vacancies, silences, objects trapped by time re-awakened, discoveries, emerging resources, and renewed senses of living energy.

Objects were created through the discovery of local Bazaars in Iran, bits left by the roadside, in people's back yards and spotted on balconies.

Not made by us, left by them, found by them.
